Portland Fish Notes.

Pollock have again appeared off the Maine coast but not in sufficiently large quantities to cause much rejoicing. The power steamer Trident arrived at Portland Friday afternoon with 3000 pounds of the black backed fish, about the best catch that has been made in a number of weeks.

Capt. Bennett said he saw no signs of herring, but there were signs that the pollock had struck in. He said schools had been reported to the westward in the vicinity of Cape Porpoise and some of the fishing steamers had headed in that direction.

The first salt fish brought to Portland this season from down the bay arrived here on the schooner Lillie Alice Thursday from Orr's Island. She had about 20 quintal of salt slack pollocks for the H. S. Melcher Co.

In about a week the swordfishing season will commence and already quite a number of Portland vessels are making preparations to start out. The schooners Albert W. Black and Albert D. Willard are both lying at Central wharf refitting, and it is probable that about a dozen of the Portland fishing vessels will engage in the fishery.

WILL PRESENT CASE TOMORROW

Anti-Beam Trawl Committee Left For Washington Yesterday.

To Show Working Model and Moving Picture at Hearing.

Hearing on Congressman A. P. Gardner's anti-beam trawling bill will be given before the House Committee on Merchant Marine and Fisheries at Washington tomorrow morning, and nearly all the Gloucester delegates who will appear are in Washington this morning.

The local committee held a brief meeting Saturday evening, when the

CAPT. HENRY M. ATWOOD,
Chairman Gloucester Anti-Beam
Trawling Committee.

final details were arranged. Last evening, J. Manuel Marshall who will present the case for the Gloucester fishermen, E. Archer Bradley, Capt. Henry M. Atwood, Jerome McDonald, Joshua W. Stanley, Carl C. Young and James H. Stapleton left for the Capital city being joined in Boston by James B. Connolly who will aid the committee at the hearing.

A miniature otter trawl, true in every detail to the regular trawl used by the otter trawlers will be exhibited before the committee, also the regular ordinary trawl such as is used by our fishermen. The former is the handiwork of Capt. Carl C. Young, one of the delegates and those who have seen it, say that the captain has made a perfect miniature.

To Show Moving Picture of Beam Trawl.

F. G. Robinson, secretary of the Boston committee has been in Washington several days. Tomorrow morning he will treat the house committee on Merchant Marine and Fisheries to a motion picture show in the office of Elliott Woods, superintendent of the capitol. Capt. Robinson believes that they will prove conclusively to the committee that beam trawling should be suppressed.

In addition to his pictures, Capt. Robinson brought to Washington with him an exhibit of fish caught by beam and otter trawls. He says they will show that the beam trawl gathers fish that are too small to be taken from the water.

Mayor Fitzgerald has taken up the fight for the fishermen and will come to Washington to present the case as he sees it.

Members of the Massachusetts delegation have received letters from both sides and the indications are that the entire delegation will attend Tuesday's hearing.

Secretary Richard W. Freeman of the local committee will leave for Washington this afternoon to attend to hearing there tomorrow morning.

May 27.

Scattering Mackerel Being Taken in the Cape Shore Traps.

Halifax Has a Good Sized Seining Fleet this Season.

The little fleet of netters that remain out south are finding it well worth while, for 15 of them are reported at Fulton market again this morning, with several large fares.

The first of the Cape Shore mackerel fishermen to visit Halifax this season arrived there Friday when two seiners put into port for shelter. Mackerel have already been reported as being quite plentiful far off shore, but so far very few have been seen on the inshore fishing grounds.

The first reports of mackerel in that vicinity were received Friday and then only an odd one or two near St. Margaret's Bay. Many of the Halifax mackerel fishing fleet are already at sea, while the others are now being equipped for the season's work. The Halifax Cold Storage Co. has equipped and sent out half a dozen vessels, while A. Wilson and Son are now equipping several more.

The mackerel are expected to strike in next week, by which time the Nova Scotia fleet fishermen will all be ready and the American fishing fleet will be along the coast.

Schs. Agnes, Georgiana and Ralph Hodgdon of the Cape Shore seining fleet were at Liverpool, N. S., last Thursday. The Times correspondent at that place reports moderate weather and large quantities of sea geese off the coast.

SCH. RAYMAH ASHORE.

Struck in Boston Harbor and Was Floated Later By Tugs.

Sch. Raymah, recently sold by the Atlantic Maritime Co., to St. John's N. F., parties, and which left East Boston, Saturday morning last with a cargo of pitch for Halifax, ran ashore in Boston lower harbor, between Deer Island and buoy No. 6.

The vessel was floated in the afternoon by two tugs, and while it is thought she was not seriously damaged if injured at all, she was towed back to her loading pier for an examination.

May 27.

Saw Lots of Whales.

Capt. Hanson of the United Fruit Company's steamship Oregon, which arrived at Long wharf, Boston, Friday, from Banes, Cuba, reported sighting an immense school of whales Wednesday afternoon, 60 miles north of Cape Hatteras. They were evidently chasing a school of mackerel. Capt. Hansen said there were fully 50 of the leviathans in the school, and they were moving in a northerly direction. Some of them appeared to be nearly 100 feet long.

The captain reports that the mackerel seiner A. M. Nicholson of Bucksport was near by, and three of her seine boats were out, evidently rounding up a big school of mackerel which the whales had driven in the direction of the schooner.

The waters were fairly alive with the monsters, and they were spouting and diving, and apparently took no notice of the steamer, which passed only a short distance from them.

The captain is evidently in error about the Nicholson being after mackerel. She is now one of the New Bedford whaling fleet and her boats were probably out for a strike when sighted.

May 27.

How They Find Herring.

Norwegian fishermen use a water telescope to ascertain the position of the herring shoals. This is the way to make the water telescope: Take a tube of tin and funnel shaped about three and a half feet long and 10 inches in diameter at the largest end. It should be wide enough at the top to take in the observer's eyes, and the inside should be painted black. At the bottom, or wide end a clear, thick piece of glass must be inserted, with a little lead in the form of a ring to weight the tube. When the instrument is immersed in clear water it is astonishing how many fathoms down the observer can see.

Fish Buyers In Court.

Eight of the most prominent fish buyers of St. John's N. F., were recently served with subpoenas to appear before the Civil Court there on the complaint of a dealer who has taken action for the recovery of a certain sum of money which he claims is due him on account of fish sold in April. The fisherman bargained for the current price and was paid $4.00 per quintal, and he now sets forth that the current price at the time was $4.20. W. R. Warren, K. C., is acting on behalf of the complainant.

May 28.

Winter Cod Catch on West Coast Poor.

The last of the winter's catch of fish on the west coast of Newfoundland was shipped to the American market, when the Gloucester schooner S. P. Willard sailed with a cargo of 350,000 pounds to the Cunningham & Thompson Co. James Welsh, who was looking after the firm's interest during the winter, returned by the Bruce and to the North Sydney Herald he states that the season just closed on the west coast of Newfoundland was the worst by far of any similar period, so far as poor catches of fish are concerned. From Port aux Basques along the entire coast the average catch amounted last winter to about 30 quintals for each boat, compared to 110 quintals in other years. This condition was brought about by the awful hard winter and prevalence of storms, preventing boats to venture out.—North Sydney Herald.

May 28.

FLOATED OFF THE SHOVELFUL.

SCH. MURIEL STRUCK YESTER-
DAY, BUT LIFE SAVERS CAME TO THE RESCUE.

Sch. Muriel grounded on Shovelful Shoal off Chatham yesterday afternoon, but was successfully floated by her crew and the crew of the Monomoy Point life-saving station about 7.30 o'clock last evening, just before the revenue cutter Acushnet arrived, which was delayed by fog at Cross Rip, for nearly two hours.

The Muriel was leaking slightly, but it was thought she would be able to proceed on her trip. Capt. McComiskey said if the leak proved serious, however, he would run back here for repairs.

SCHOONER WAS STRUCK IN FOG.

The steamship Grecian, from Philadelphia, arrived at Boston 24 hours late on Saturday, owing to a heavy fog, during which the steamer was in collision with a schooner thought here to have been sch. Irene and May of the Fulton market bluefishing fleet.

The collision occurred off Cape May on Thursday, the bowsprit of the schooner striking the steamer and being splintered. The steamer backed to ascertain the amount of damage done, and narrowly escaped backing upon the schooner, which had come about and was coming towards the steamer, the crafts coming within a few inches of each other. The skipper of the fishing vessel told the captain of the schooner he was in no need of aid and disappeared in a bank of fog.

Fulton Market Fish Notes.

There was plenty of cheap fish in the market this week and buying was active up to Thursday, says the Fishing Gazette. Bluefish was high on Wednesday and Thursday because of the light supply. Shad were somewhat scarce, the Virginia run being over. Halibut was low until Thursday. There were no weakfish in the market from Monday to Wednesday. Nearly all varieties of groundfish were low in price. Much fancy fish could be had at attractive prices. Fresh mackerel prices were low during the middle of the week.

Market cod sold at 3 cents per pound during the entire week, with the exception of yesterday, when some sales were made at 2½ cents.

Steak cod sold at 4½ to 7 cents. The high price prevailed only on Wednesday and Thursday.

Three to 5 cents was the price of haddock. Hake brought 2½ to 3 cents.

Caught a "Monster."

Two shad fishermen of Gloucester, N. J., Daniel Miller and Harry Taylor, caught in their net last Friday a "monster" with horns and teeth. The men say it sprang at them, but was finally killed with an oar. The head is said to resemble that of a large "snapper", but not unlike that of an alligator, except for the horns. It has 20 teeth, short and ragged, those in front being shaped like a dog's, long and pointed. On its back are scales from one to two inches in length. The creature has four feet like an alligator's, and measures 4 feet, 4 inches in length.

Irish Mackerel Imports.

The Fishing Gazette says:
Cable advices from Liverpool to Boston, May 18, announce shipments of Irish mackerel as follows: To Boston, 121 bbls.; to all other ports, 138 bbls. State of fishing, fair. Count, 300 to 350. The new Irish mackerel are thin, but of good color, and of the usual quality. The trade, however, does not seem anxious for them as yet. The foreign mackerel market is steady and the stocks are known to be in strong hands.

Caught Big Scup.

Capt. Frank Lewis, of the fishing str. Winona, of Newport, R. I., recently landed a scup measuring 22½ inches from nose to the end of his tail, and weighing 17 pounds.

May 28.

Porto Rico Fish Notes.

The report of S. Ramirez & Co., of San Juan, of May 14, says. The demand for codfish has been stimulated by the more reasonable prices now ruling, and receipts are passing to consumption at about $31 per drum, net, ex-wharf.

Despite the very low prices at which pollock and haddock are offered sales are slow owing to the fear of buyers to load up. We continue to quote at from $16 to $17.50 per drum, net, ex-wharf, according to quality.

Since May 7, the date of our last report, arrivals of fish at the various ports were as follows:

At San Juan, 268 tcs. and 127 bxs. cod, 19 tcs. pollock, 29 tcs. haddock, 15 tcs. dry fish, 160 bxs. salmon, 155 bbls. bloaters. At Vonce, 183 tcs. cod, 85 tcs. pollock, 27 tcs. haddock.
